

EduHound Site Sets

Adequate Yearly Progress (AYP)

Adequate Yearly Progress (AYP) is one of the cornerstones of the federal No Child Left Behind (NCLB) Act. It's a measure of year-to-year student achievement.

- AYP Communications Toolkit

This 'toolkit' provides information needed to share AYP with parents, community and the news media. Included is an easy-to-understand explanation of how AYP will be calculated, talking points, sample news releases, plus links to good NCLB resources.

<http://www.osba.org/hotopics/funding/nclb/ayptk/>

- Michigan DoE: Adequate Yearly Progress

This site not only includes details about Michigan's AYP, it provides a wealth of resources on AYP in general -- for educators and families alike!

http://www.michigan.gov/mde/0,1607,7-140-22709_22875---,00.html

- AFT - NCLB: Adequate Yearly Progress

From the American Federation of Teachers: Provides, research, resources, and insights on AYP.

<http://www.aft.org/topics/nclb/ayp.htm>

- USDoE: AYP Resources

Features a collection of 'editor's picks' resources for AYP.

<http://www.ed.gov/nclb/accountability/ayp/edpicks.jhtml>

EduHound Site Sets are concise collections of resources focused on specific topics.